Gynecological surgery robots are robotic systems that are used to perform gynecological surgeries. There has been an emergence of novel product offerings in the market, which facilitate robotic and computer-assisted gynecology surgeries. Such products are gaining traction due to the increase in the demand for gynecological disorders, and the increased demand for procedures that enhance precision and eliminate any revisions.

The increasing preference for minimally invasive surgery (MIS) will drive the growth prospects for the global gynecology robotic surgery market during the forecast period. This growing preference for minimally invasive surgeries has resulted in the high adoption of robotic-assisted techniques. Some of the factors that encourage the adoption of MIS across the globe are the reduced recovery time, hospital stay, and postoperative pain. The robotic approach towards the complicated surgeries allow precise movement of instruments and give a better view of the targeted area in comparison to other conventional techniques. Consequently, robotic surgeries are gaining traction in the market, especially for gynecological applications. One of the major factors that drive the market’s growth is the associated patient satisfaction that encourages the manufacturers to develop more advanced robotic equipment.

The Americas accounted for the maximum market share during 2015 and will continue to dominate the market for the next few years. One of the major factors responsible for the market’s growth in the region is the high occurrence of hysterectomies, malignant, and benign ovarian cancer cases. Another factor that drives the market’s growth in the region is the growing adoption of robotic surgery that indicates an increase in the market opportunity. Some of the companies such as the Titan Medical and OmniGuide will fuel the market’s growth.
