Session Initiation Protocol (SIP) trunking is an Internet-based service that permits Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP) users to stay connected in local and long-distance calls to and from endpoints in the traditional phone network.

The on-premise SIP trunking services segment accounted for the majority market share and will continue to dominate the market for the next few years. One of the major factors responsible for the market segment’s growth is the ability of on-premise private branch exchange (PBX) session initiation protocol trunk to get lower cost calls.

The small- and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) segment accounted for the majority market share during 2017 and will continue to dominate the market during the forecasted period. One of the major factors responsible for the increasing adoption of SIP trunking is to increase business productivity. Also, with the growing adoption of unified communication (UC) systems and voice over internet protocol (VoIP), the SIP trunking is witnessing a uniform growth with SMEs.
