Description:
Water and soil pollution are critical concerns in the mining industry and can be caused by toxic heavy metals, surfactants, fine particles of minerals, oil and grease, soaps and detergents, rubber, poisonous chemicals, high acidic or alkaline chemicals, and coal particles. The industry is looking for a sustainable practice to reduce its environmental impact. Mining chemicals along with water and wastewater treatment equipment play an important role in this by treating water to remove impurities and waste. According to the report, one driver in market is need for sustainable practices in the mining industry. The mining industry is water intensive; it is used for activities such as extraction of minerals, which are present in solids and liquids forms, transport slurry, and protect dust. Thus, water is a vital component for mining companies; however, mining activities create an ecological imbalance due to high water use. Also, the water run-off from the extraction activities is leading to pollution of the ground and surface water. This situation worsens in areas that are facing water scarcity, leading to local communities opposing mining activities. The global Water and Wastewater Management for the Mining market was valued at xx million US$ in 2018 and will reach xx million US$ by the end of 2025, growing at a CAGR of xx% during 2019-2025.
